Age Often Mere Capable Than Youth

AMERICA AT THE MOMENT is over-emphasizing two things, AMERICA AT THE MOMENT is over-emphasizing two things, supposedly of vital importance. Well, maybe, but I know other things of equal importance that the country at large is neglecting. The two other things on which over-emphasis is placed? Age and figure. I know men and women who apparently think a boyish figure or sylphlike anatomy are the chief aims. They are important, but if the principles would pay just half as much attention to loyalty and integrity, this world would soon be a place we'd be proud to think we had a hand in the moulding.

Age in America has come to be almost a disgrace. Yet those who scorn it look forward to reaching a ripe-old age. Some of our ignorant youth even go so far as to ridicule age. Like all who ridicule, they brandish the only weapon they are capable of using.

And all this is inspired by a gun manufacturing company in Oklahoma operated largely by men in advanced years. The president of the company is 70 years old; the chairman of the board of directors is two years past the century mark; the man who serves as both vice-president and treasurer also has passed who serves as both vice-president and treasurer also has passed his allotted three-score years and ten. There ar more than 400 employees of this company with an average age of 42.

In doing some research on this company, which, by the way, is the Ithaca Gun Company, Ithaca, N. Y., manufacturing shot-guns, I learned that three million of America's workers are more than 65 years of age.

I myself have discussed this matter of older workers I myself have discussed this matter of older workers with any number of officers of big companies. I have never yet found one that claimed age was a deterrent in engaging an employee. What they invariably said was that ability was their keynote, and that in many instances, an older man was preferable because of the experience he could bring to the job. Bernard Gimbel of the Gimbel stores told me once that he thought they got best results by mixing the older men with the younger men. An officer of Rogers, Peet said they never turned away a man because he was too old. He said definitely away a man because he was too old. He said definitely that the older men nearly always were far, far more able to handle customers because they were brought up in an era of courtesy and thoughtfulness which is sadly

RUSSIAN POTENTIAL

T IS OF COURSE IMPOSSIBLE to figure very closely the populallon of Russia, but starting with 170 million in 1914, and taking into consideration the terrible losses from wars, liquidations, etc., the figure of 190 million would probibly be a fall estimate—not the rast numbers they would have us believe. Our population is 150 milion free men and women, and only the most abysmal shortsightedness sow, and gross mismanagement luring conflict, could bring about our defeat in a bot war with the irmles of Stalin.

In each of the world wars, Russia mobilized over 12 million. In World War II we mobillege 10,000,000, But the arms and munitions provided by the U.S.A., principally, made the Russian resistance possible. Today Russia probably couldn't provide herself with sufficient material to carry on, for even a year, a war of intensive

At this moment however, Russia could walk across Europe to the North Sea and to Gibraliar, and nothing could stop them. And when they had occupied the west ccasts of Europe and North Africa, the USA couldn't land an army -and the war would be over.

In the last war we were able to use the British telands as a base upon which to mobilize our armies and from which to launch our attacks upon the coasts of North Africa and France. Under presentday serial warfare potentialities, this base would be almost votenable, wheras the terrain of the Spanish peninsula would lend itself readily to such a purposo. And because of the Pyrences mountains, it could be made practically impromable to attack by ground

It is for these reasons that this column continues to harp upon the subject of arming the present violently anti-Commumist government of Spain. (Inat ad of Mr. Tholy

But don't worry about it, Ills friends in this country and in the United Nations will see to it that Stalin gets Spain before we do.
